Dear Cheryl,
I really love to sing. I've been asked to sing in this program at school. I want to, but all my friends say it's not cool and not to join it. My parents say I'm very very talented with singing. I've been singing since I was three, and I don't want to stop now! — Ashley, Salisbury, MD

Dear Ashley,
Any activity where you get up in front of people and show your talent (singing, dancing, acting, cheer-leading) is infinitely cool. I say go for it. Your friends are probably just jealous that they aren't as talented as you. You can dedicate your first CD to them. — Cheryl

Dear Cheryl,
I'm in sixth grade. I like a boy in another school. I see him at dances. I think he's really cute, though I don't think he notices me. How can I get him to notice me and talk to me? — Tiffany, New York, NY

Dear Tiffany,
It's easy for a guy to get interested in you if you play hard to get. The moment a boy thinks you're unavailable he'll start drooling over him. Sad, but that's the way it is. Dance with every boy there except for him until he can't stand it anymore and asks you to dance. — Cheryl

Dear Cheryl,
My friend Carolyn and I had a fight a little while back and we aren't as close as we used to be. Now it seems like she hates me. She's very popular and she hangs out in a group with all my friends in it. If I go up to the group, Carolyn tells me to go away. — Jenna, Alberta, Canada

Dear Jenna,
That Carolyn doesn't sound like a very nice girl. Get back at her by stealing her boyfriend. If she doesn't have a boyfriend, make up a harmless but nasty little rumor to spread about her. That's a sure-fire way to get back at a mean friend. — Cheryl

Dear Cheryl,
I had a boyfriend but we broke up. Sometimes he flirts with me, but he flirts with other girls too. He won't go out with anyone. All he does is flirt! But I can't get over him. I had other boyfriends but we broke up because of that boy. — Clueless, Corinth, MS

Dear Clueless,
Don't waste your Saturday nights home sulking over some guy who doesn't deserve you. It's okay for girls to flirt but flirty guys are just annoying. Don't they know their job in life is to worship their girlfriend? There are lots more peas in the pod so get picking! — Cheryl

Dear Cheryl,
I have a best friend named Ronnie. She likes this guy in our class. We try to talk to him, but I secretly like him too. How do I get this boy and keep my friend? — Ashley, Ontario, Canada

Dear Ashley,
It's a hard thing to do, but I've managed to pull it off a few times. When Ronnie isn't around, spend time with this guy and flirt with him. Then if you and he start dating, put the blame totally on him and say he chased you. Your friend will probably forgive you, but if she doesn't, at least you have a cute boyfriend to cheer you up. — Cheryl

Dear Cheryl,
I'm tall with green eyes and brownish-blond hair and I wear glasses. My friends say I'm pretty but I don't think I am. I want to be pretty enough to get a boy named Blair. He's the cutest guy in grade six. He likes me too, but I want to be more attractive to him. — Desperate, Nova Scotia, Canada

Dear Desperate,
No matter how pretty you are, there's always room for improvement. That's what hair-styles and make-up are for! Treat yourself to a new haircut at your local beauty salon. Then put on a pretty pink lipstick and green eyeliner to bring out the color in your green eyes. And then if Blair doesn't notice you, he isn't worth your time. — Cheryl

Dear Cheryl,

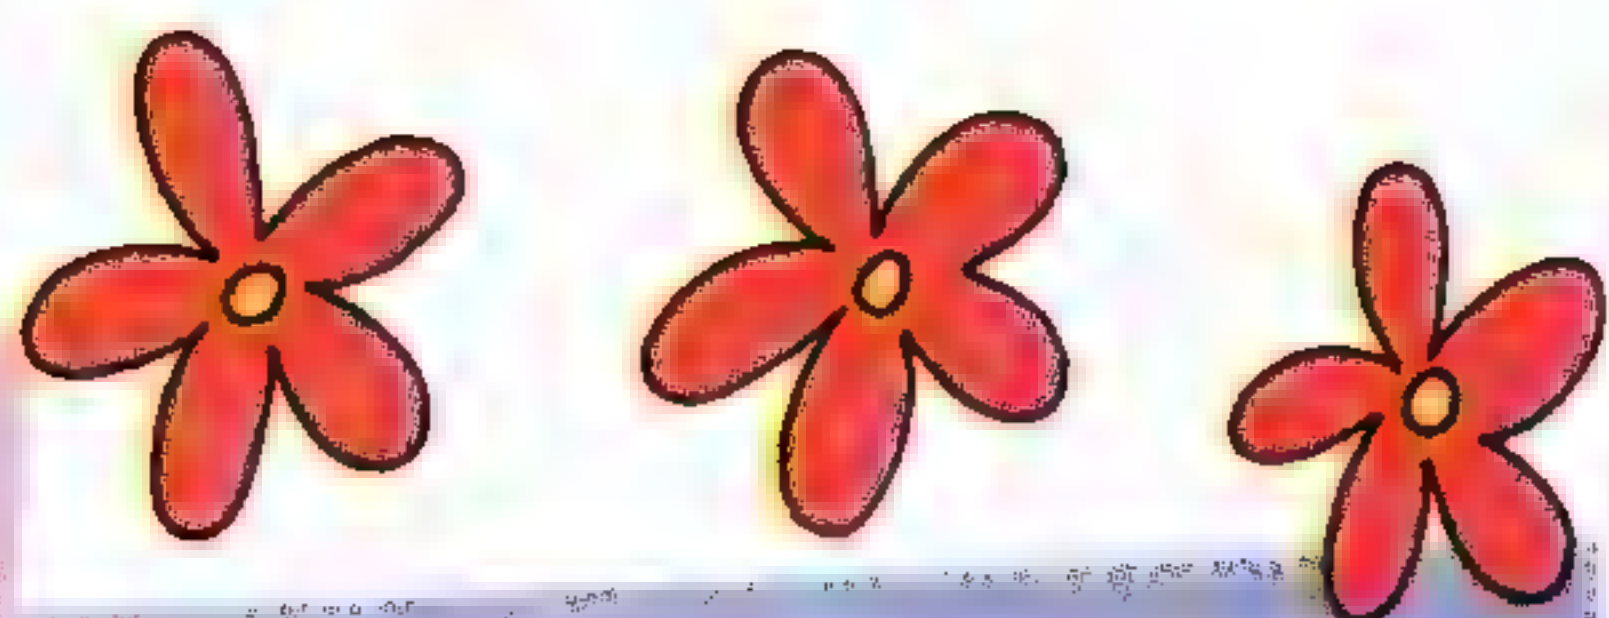

I'm the only girl in my class who doesn't have a boyfriend. I've tried everything: Dressing up, make-up, the works! (I'd try strutting my stuff but I don't have much stuff to strut!) What am I supposed to do?

— Without a Boyfriend,
Wisconsin, IN

Dear Without a Boyfriend,

Well, I never said boys were smart. The boys in your class probably are too clueless to recognize a hot babe when they see one. As long as you look your best, then that's all you can do. Then sit back and wait for the guys to get a clue.

— Cheryl

Dear Cheryl,

There's a guy who really likes me but I don't like him. He's always coming near me and I don't like it. He's very geeky. What should I do?

— Kittens, Glendale, CA

Dear Kittens,

A girl can't help it if she's irresistible. But that certainly doesn't mean you can let any geek follow you around. Spray him with your favorite perfume the next time he comes near. If he asks why you did it say, "I was just spraying on my perfume, and you got in the way!"

— Cheryl

Dear Cheryl,

I can't find a boyfriend. Help me. What should I do? — Maggie, Wichita, KS

Dear Maggie,

First of all, don't go around announcing that you can't find a boyfriend. You don't want anyone to actually know that. Hang out where there are a lot of males, such as a school football game or a shop class. Then you should do these three simple things: flirt, flirt and flirt. — Cheryl

YOU know your boyfriend's bad news when:

- 1) You have to call his parole officer to set up a date with him.
- 2) He announces to you he's taking you to a fast food place for your birthday and he's not kidding!
- 3) Every time you call him, a different girl answers his phone.
- 4) You see his Dad on "America's Most Wanted."
- 5) His class rank is 257 but there are only 250 students in your class.
- 6) He copies everything off your test paper including your name.
- 7) He buys himself a gift on your birthday.
- 8) He tells you "You're beautiful" and you realize he's talking to his own reflection in your sunglasses.
- 9) Your Dad calls him "That menace to society."
- 10) The kids run away from him on Halloween and he's not even wearing a mask.

I feel important therefore I am.

Dear Cheryl,

There's this boy I like. One day I told him I like him and now I don't think he's my friend anymore. Other times he flirts with me. What does this mean? — Sophia, Miami, FL

Dear Sophia,

This boy, like most, is probably a chicken. He's intimidated by a terrific girl such as yourself and he's getting all shy about it. Don't you hate that? Well, you'll have to work with it. Act super-cool like you couldn't care less about him and he'll come around. — Cheryl

Dear Cheryl,

There's a boy I like who I see every Friday at the skating rink. One night he said to my two friends and me, "I only like one girl among you three girls." How do I find out if he likes me? — Girl Who Wants to Know, Maumee, OH

Dear Girl Who Wants to Know, Okay, so this guy thinks he can be all mysterious and get you girls fighting over him. Let him know that you girls won't fall for that kind of behavior. All of you should pretend you couldn't care less who he likes (and then ask a friend to find out for you.) — Cheryl

Dear Cheryl,

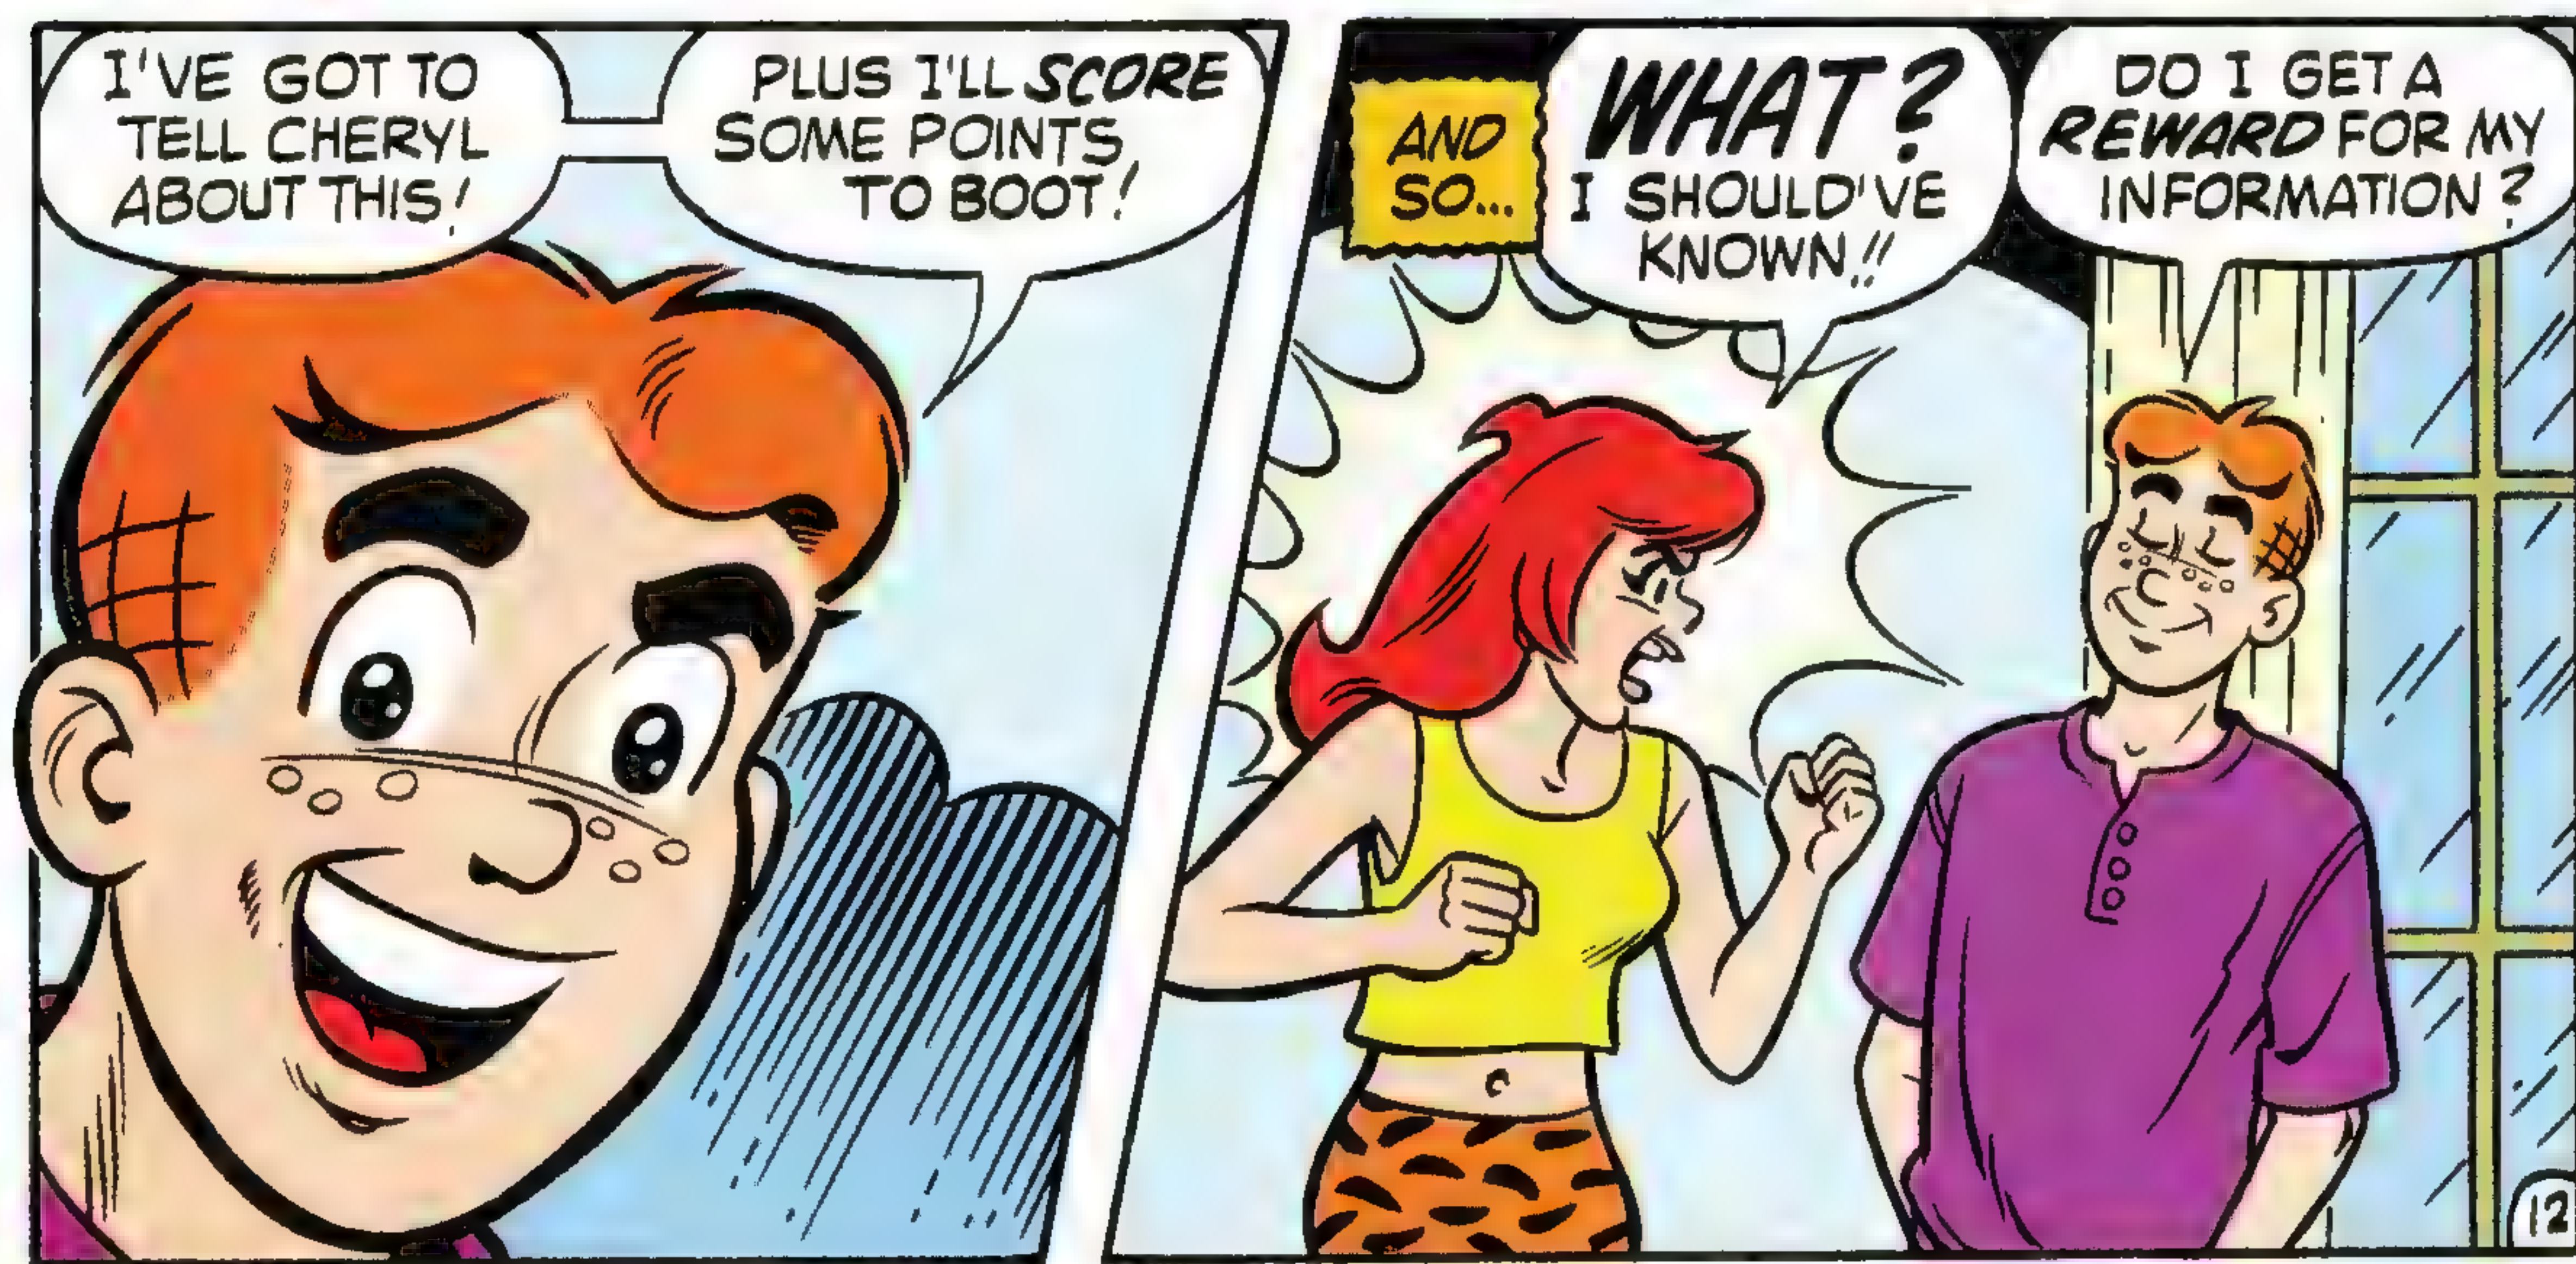

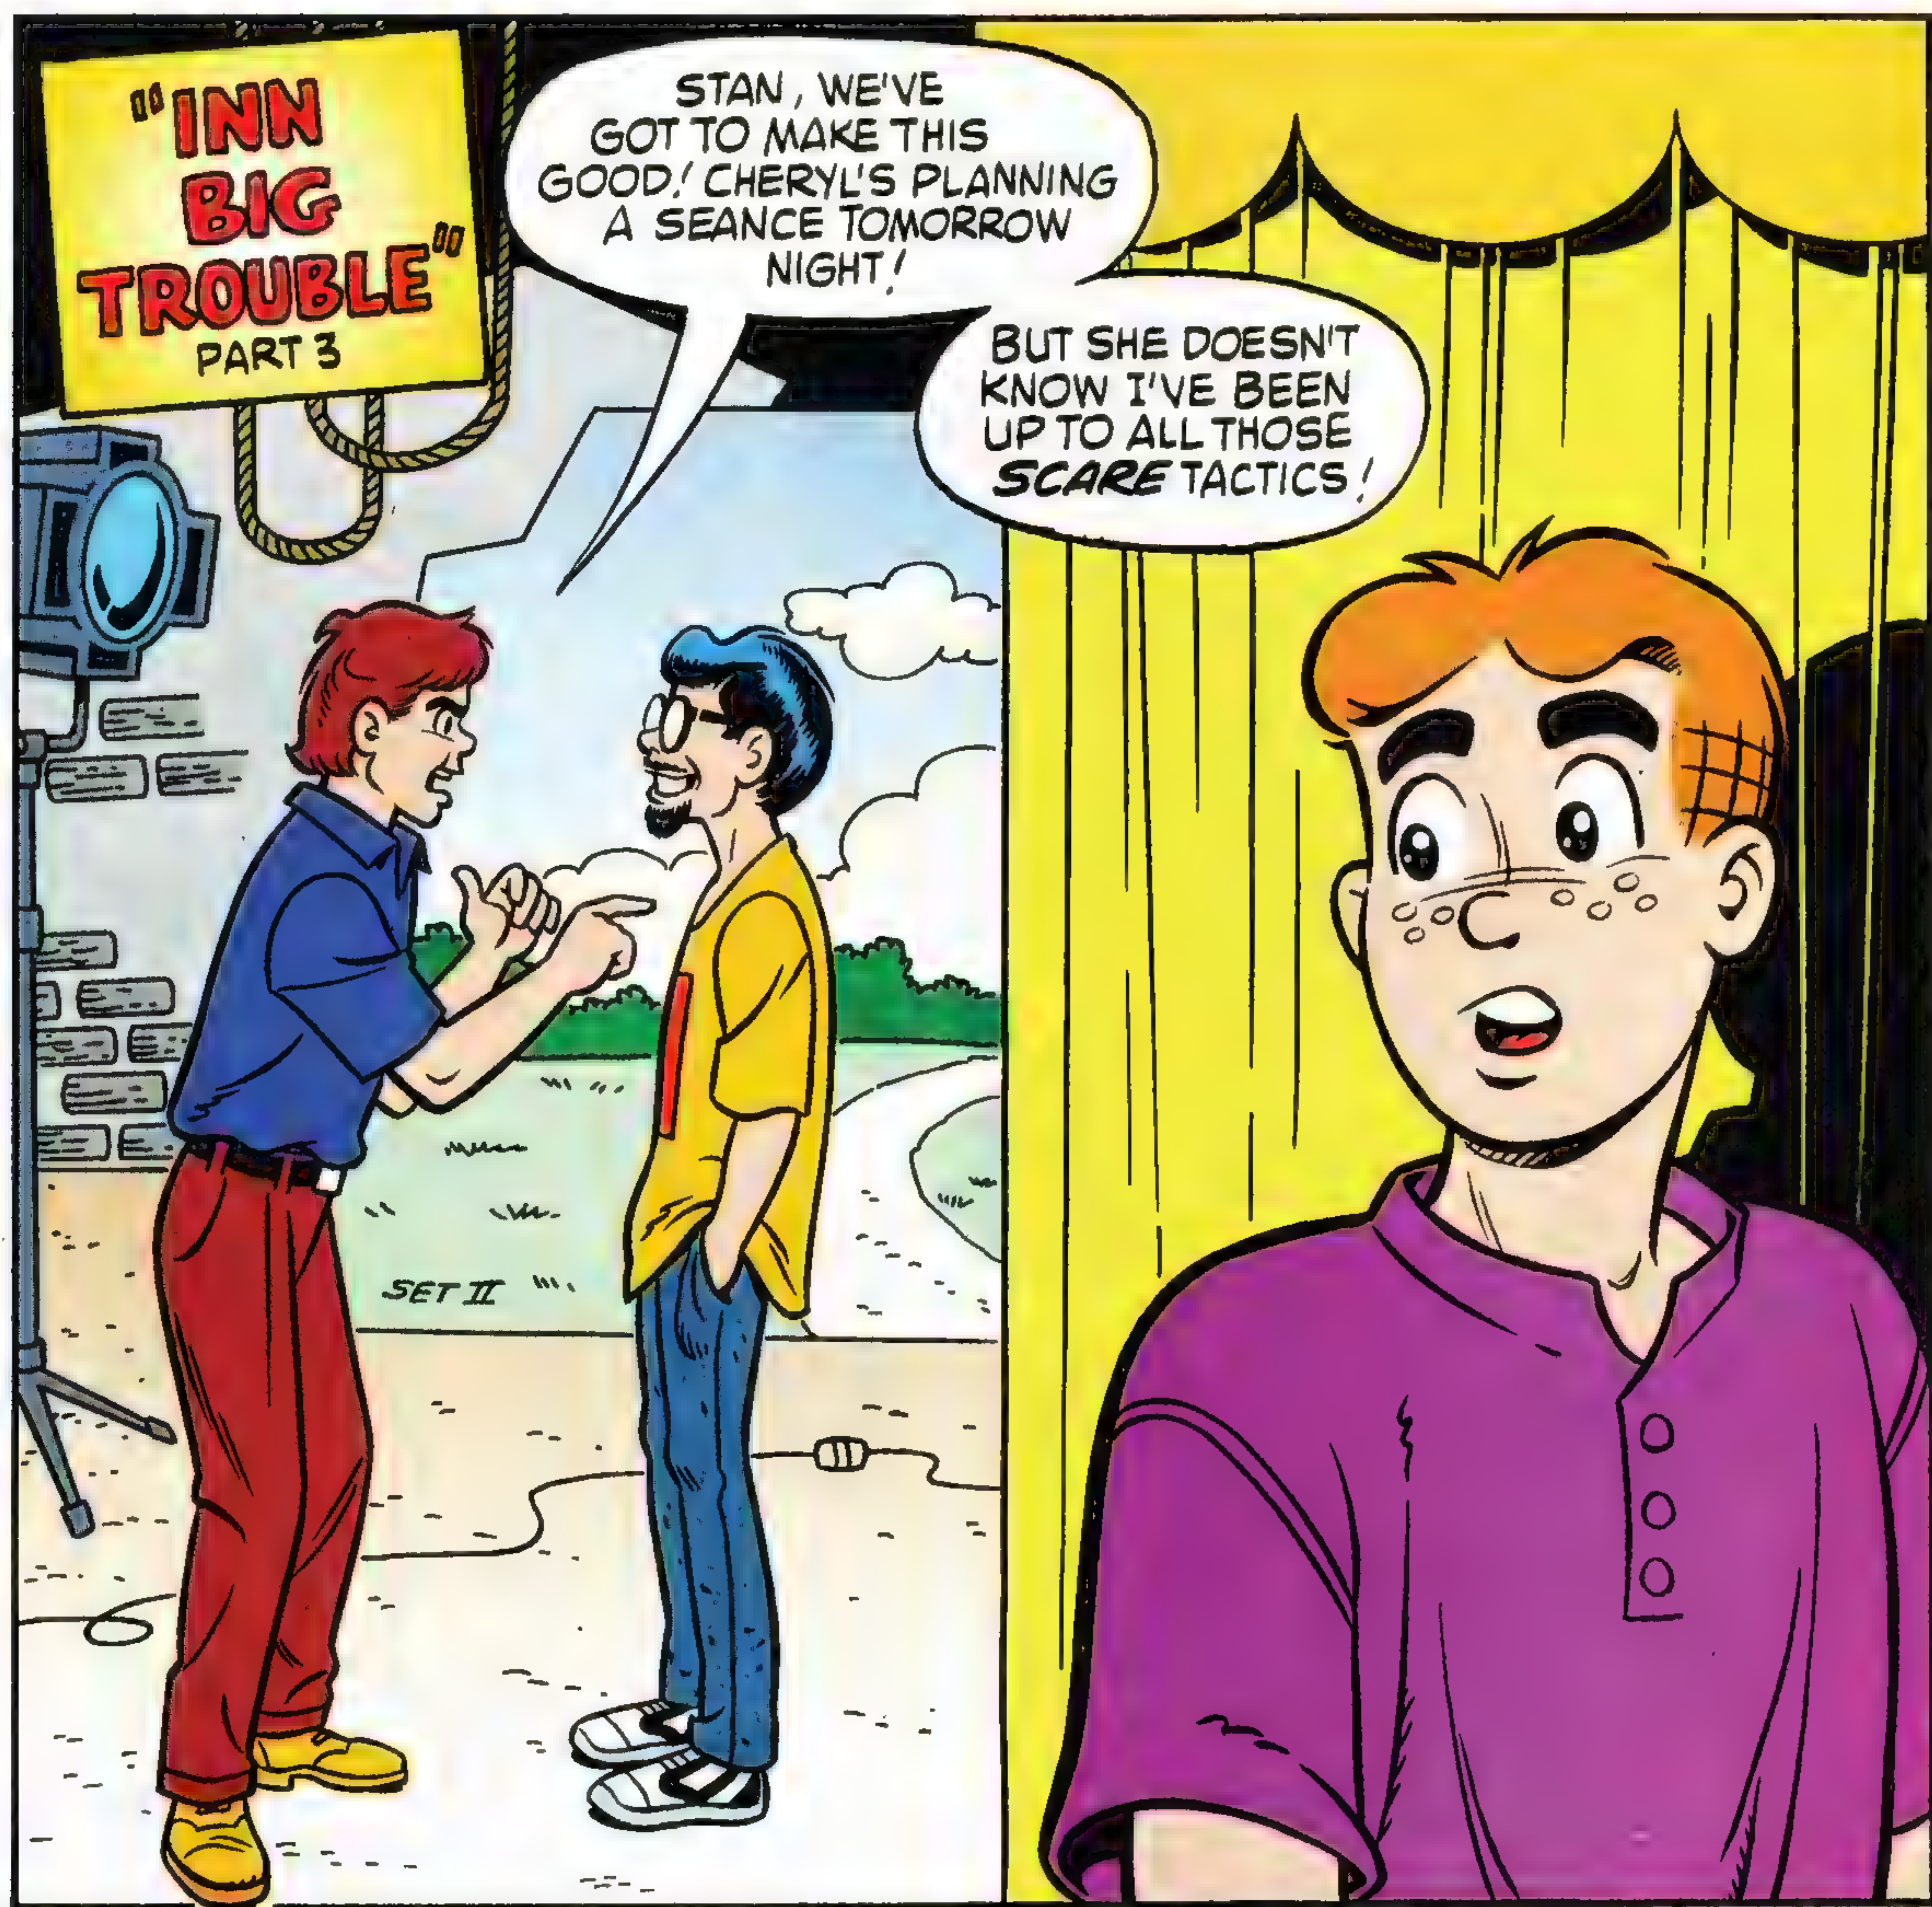

I'm not trying to brag or anything but I'm glamorous and totally gorgeous. Boys flock over me like flies are attracted to light. But I have too many guys in my life. I sometimes have to sneak two dates in one night. Should I be like Betty Cooper and only date one boy or be like you and continue living every girl's fantasy life? — Dazed & Confused, Prince Edward Island, Canada

Dear Dazed & Confused,

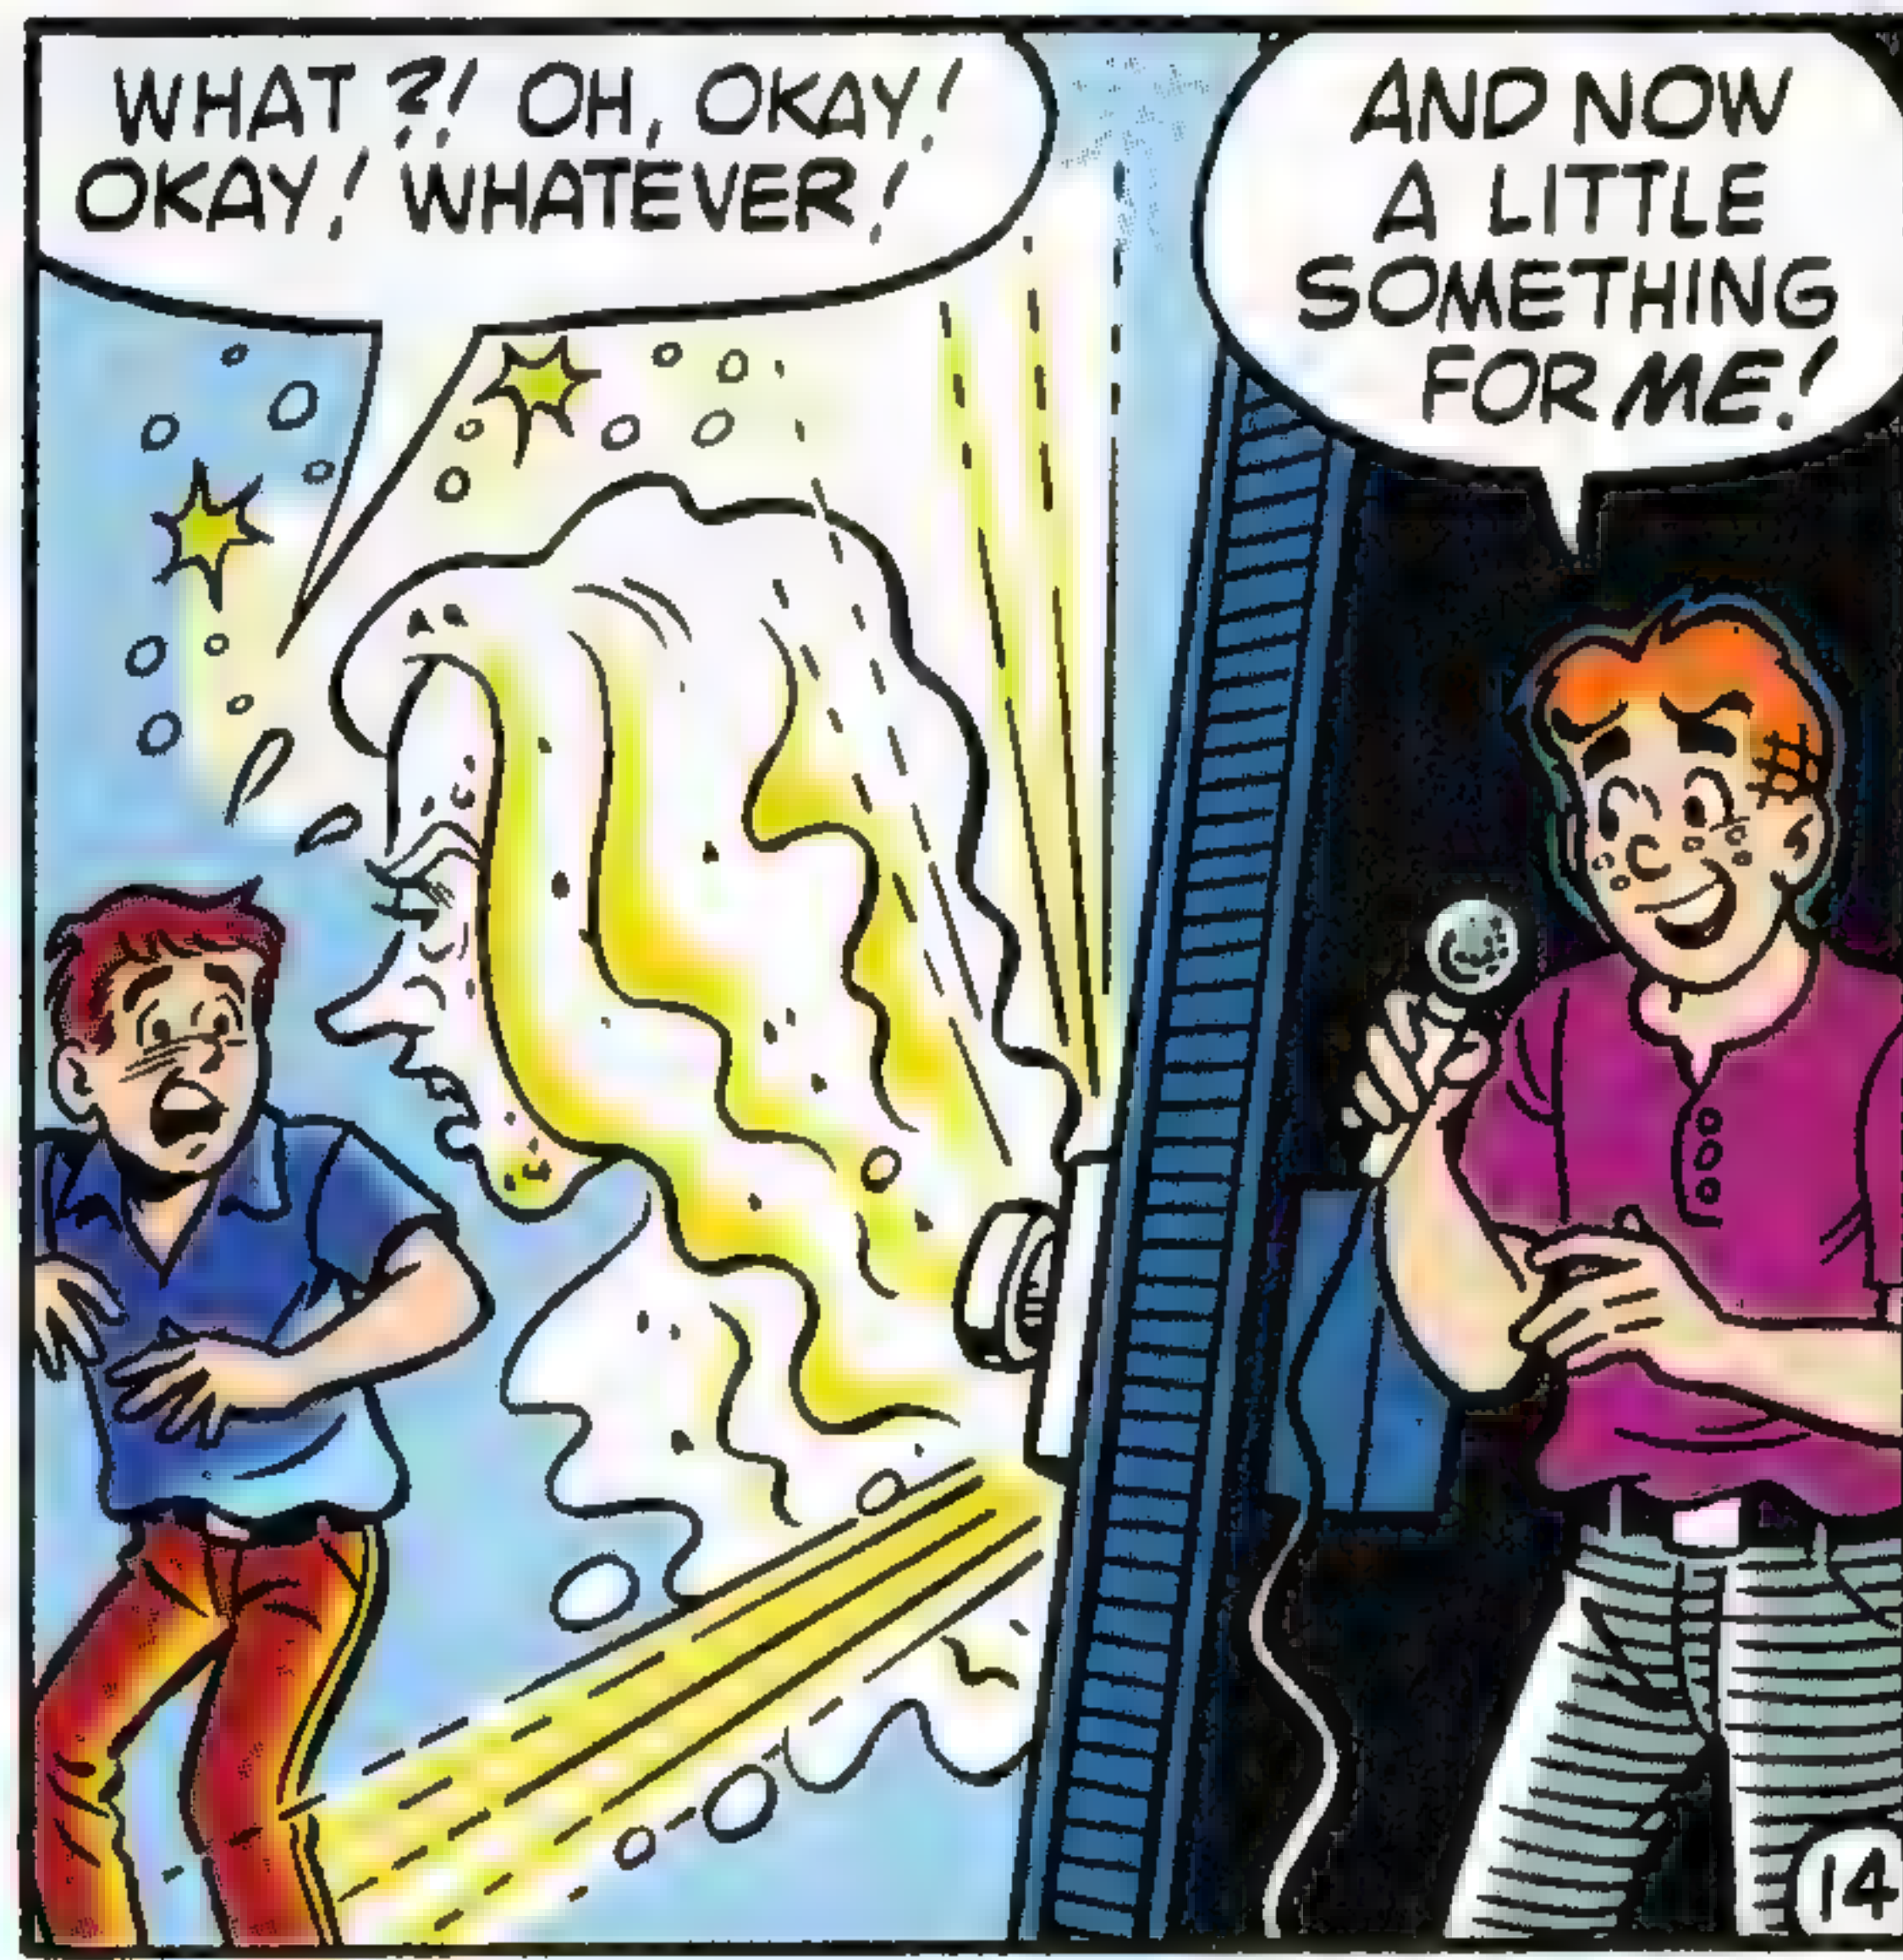

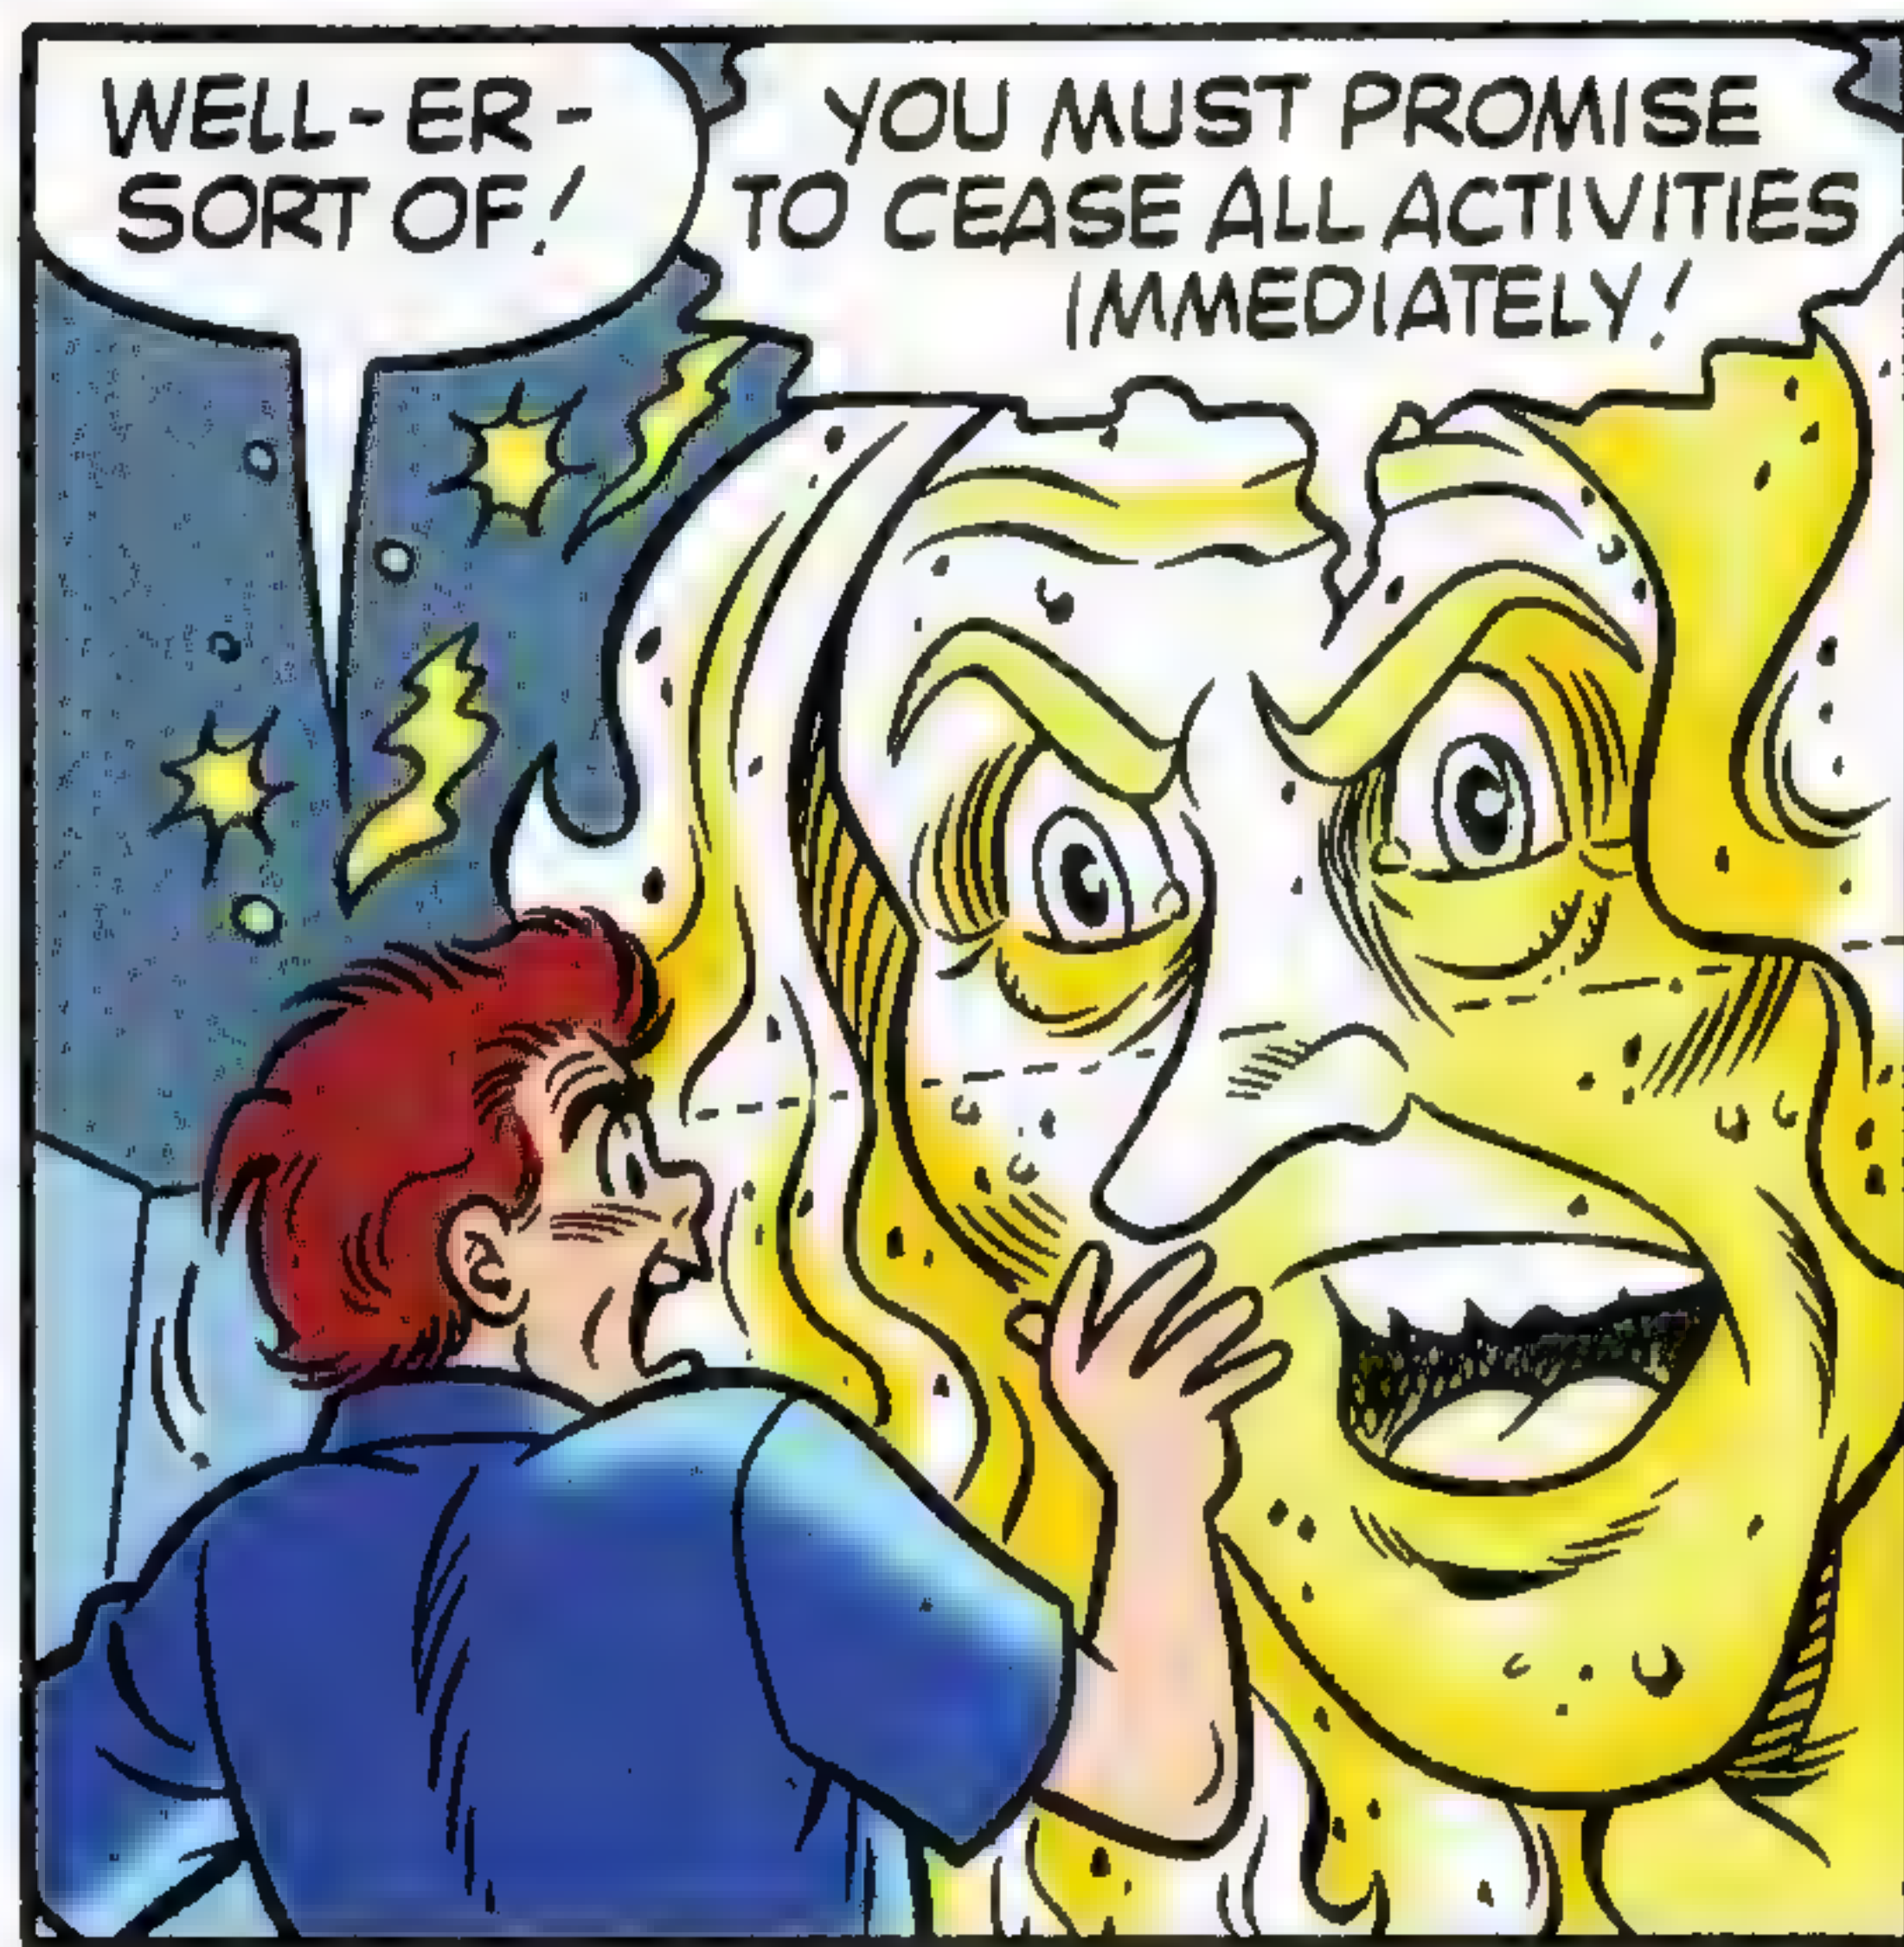

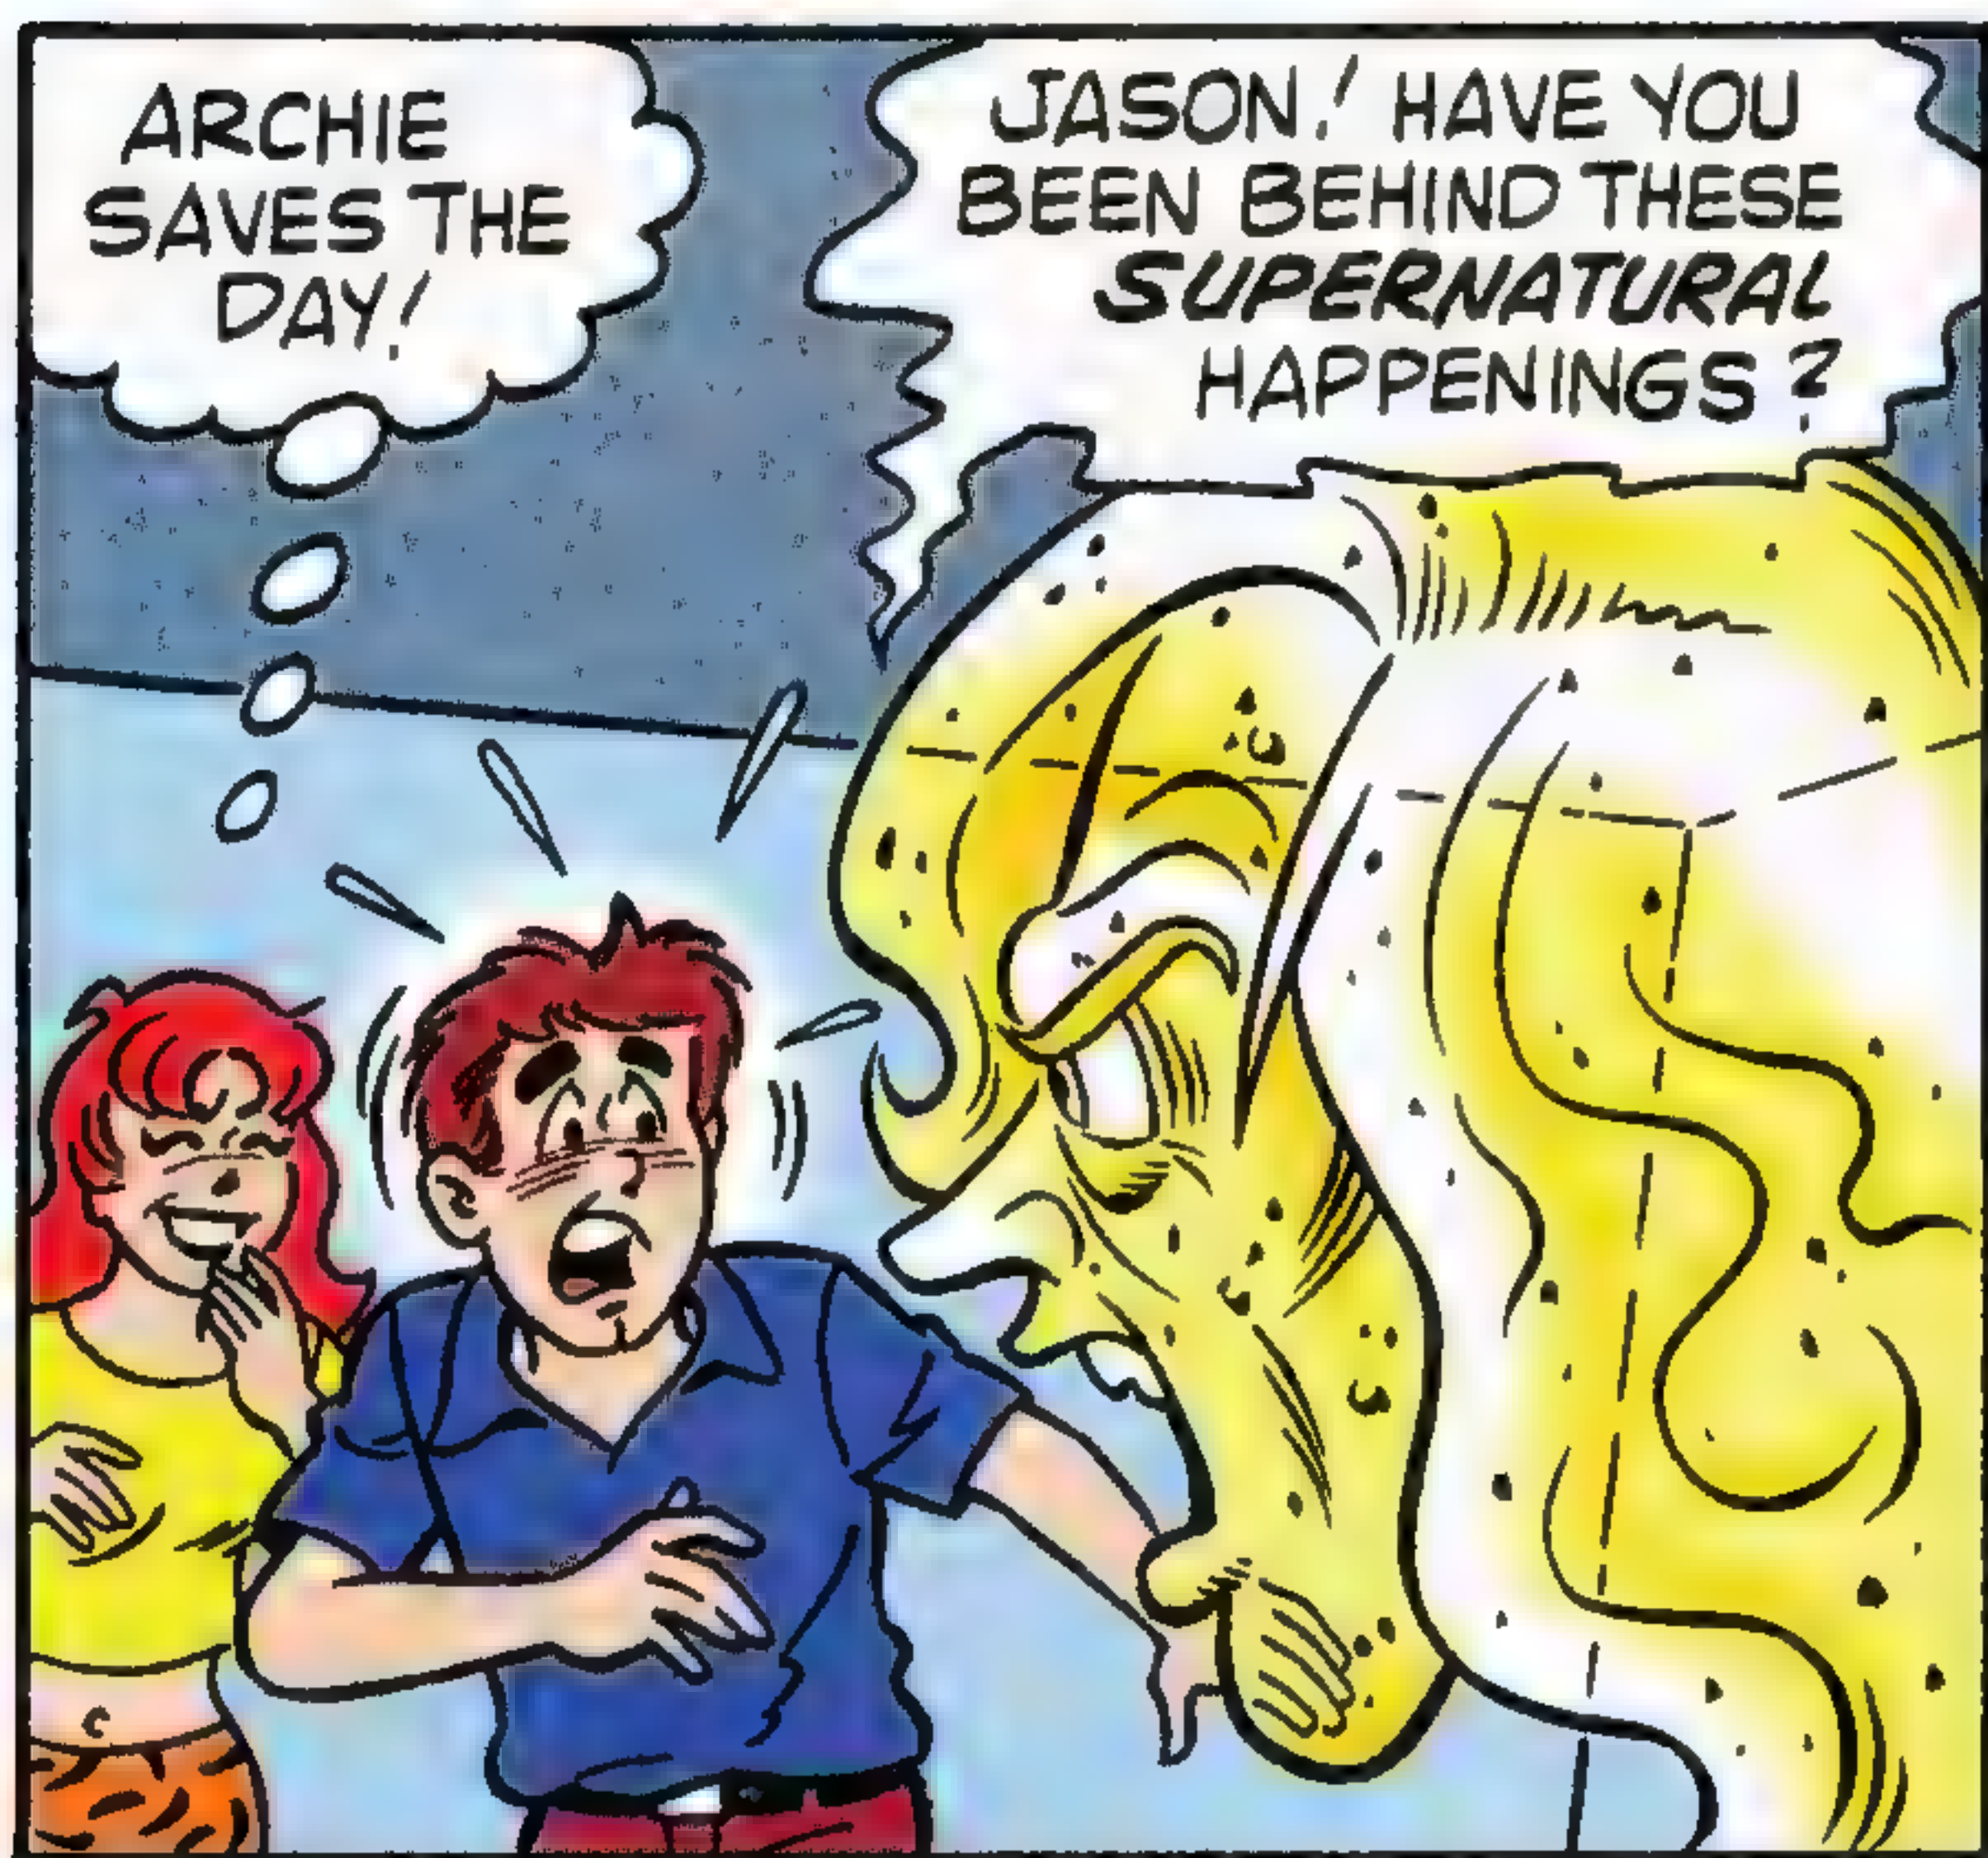

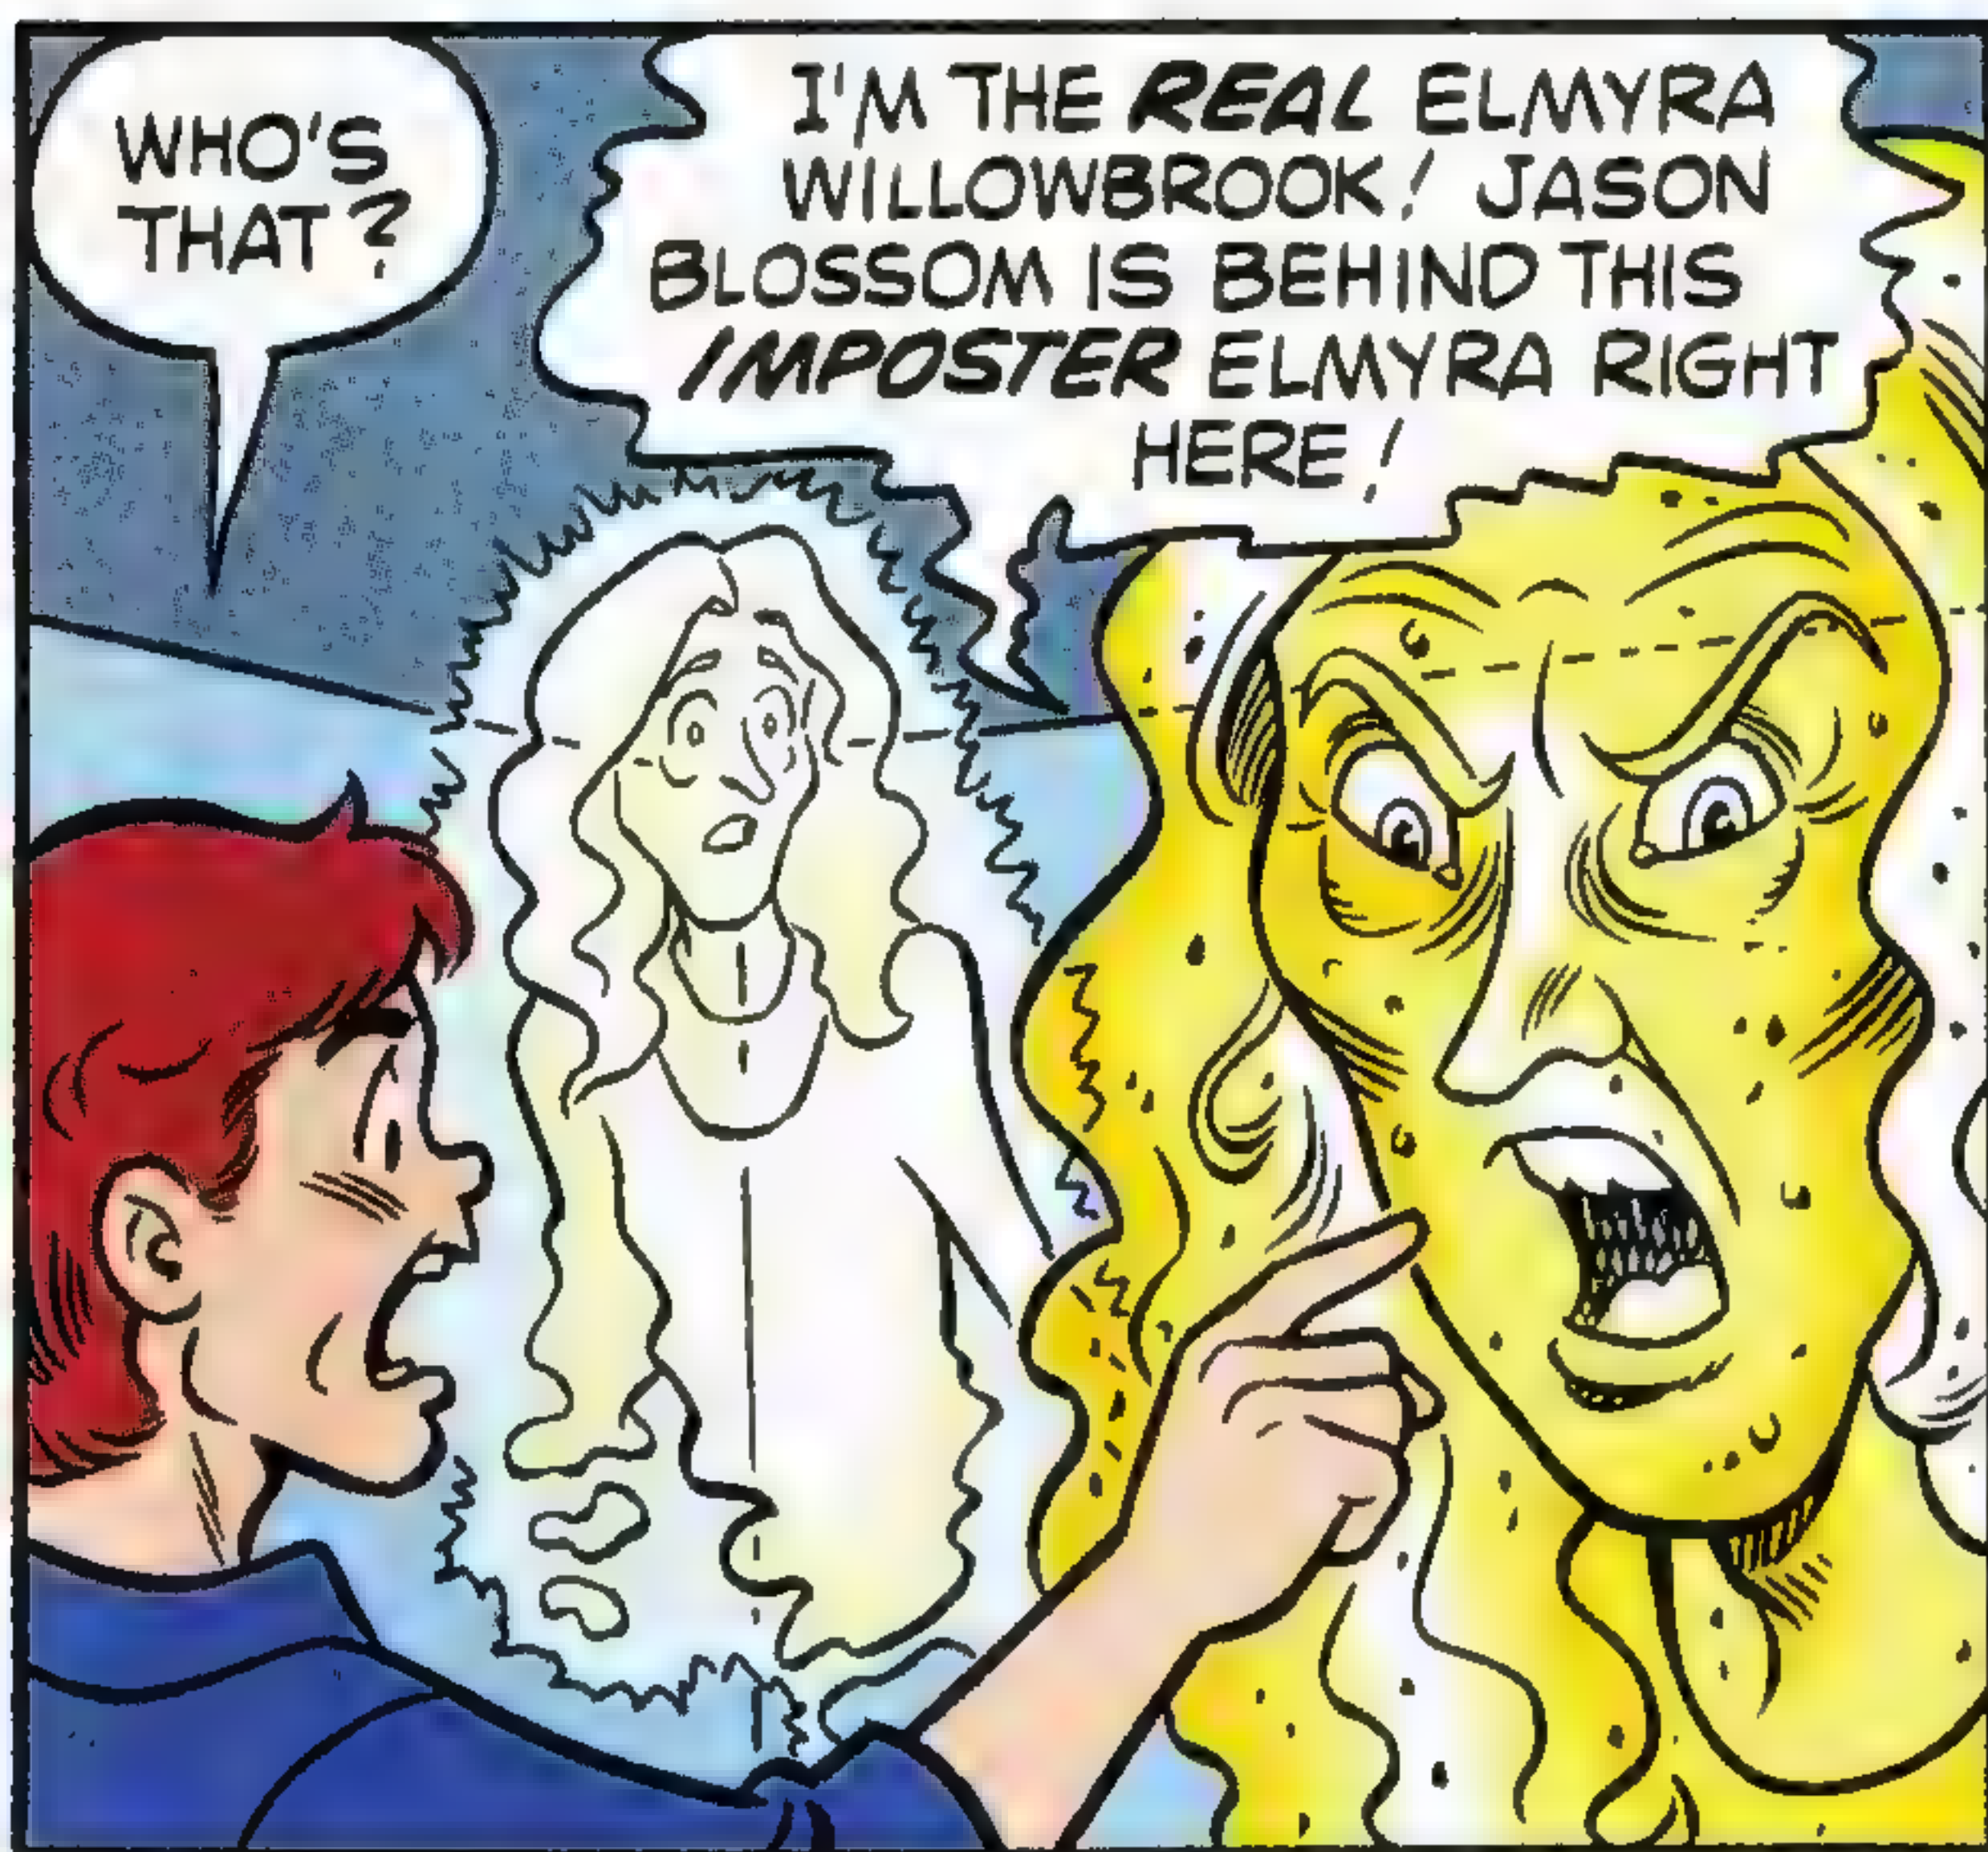

I'd never be one to suggest you date one boy like Betty Cooper does. It sounds like you're having fun doing what you do best: attracting boys. I admit sometimes it does get confusing when I can't keep track of my dates. My advice is, keep it to one date a night. A girl needs her beauty sleep too, you know! — Cheryl
